SERGEANT KITTY IN COMMAND TO-MORROW

This Popular Comic Opera Here To-morrow for First Time.

Miss Helen Byron, the star of "Sergeant Kitty." the comic opera to which critics have freely given the title of "the best comic opera seen in years," will be seen for the first-time in this citly at the Academy to-morrow and Saturday, with a Saturday mattnes.

She is winsome, she is pretty, she is charming, and she is surrounded by a splendid company of singers and players.

Thanksgiving Performances.
The dramatization by Justin Adams of the "best New England story ever written," and one of the most popular and est selling books of the day, entitled Quincy Adams Sawyer," which will be cen at the Academy Thanksgiving afteroon and night, is presented by a carelly selected company of well known ritists, and is given in four acts and we seenes, all specially built and painted or this production. The first act is the nterior of Benoni Hill's grocery store and the village postoffice at Mason's Corer; the first scene of the second act is be cross roads between Eastborough and Mason's Corner; the second act is Mrs. Putnam's "settin' com" at the Putnam farm, the third act is the Pettengill farm yard, showing an id-fashioned husking bee in the great arm, and the fourth act is the Interior and exterior of the Pettengill homesteid, howing a good old New England snow torm. Thanksgiving Performances.

"Mrs. Delaney."

Of the Bijou Thanksgiving week the Norfolk Pilot says:
"Mrs. Delaney, of Newport," came, played and conquered at the Granby. The audience taxed the capacity of the house. There was a laugh for every minute of the 150 that the play ran. The company was excellent, the chorus good to look upon, the scenery new and the songs fresh, catchy and funny.

There is little if any plot to the show and none appears necessary. The lines from beginning to end scintillate with genuine humor, and the laughs crowd each other so ewifuly as to be almost continuous.

"Rachel Goldstein."

"Rachel Goldstein" will have a mat ince to-day, and will continue through the week at the Blom. Her success has been a big one-and Miss Beaton's splen did portrayal of the part of the heroing has caused much praise from Bijou pa-trons as well as the critics.

Bottle Sealing Device Is Giving All the Trouble-Cases on the Docket To-day.

The United States Circuit Court of Apcals, composed of Circuit Judges Goff and Pritchard and District Judge' Brawley, convoned yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and was engaged during the entire day in hearing arguments of some the United States, in another branch of the famous Crown Cork and Seal Company's bottle stopper litigation.

This case is entitled the Imperial Bottle Cap and Machine Company, et al., appellants, vs. the Crown Cork and Scal Company, and is an appeal from the Cir-cuit Court of Maryland, from an inter-locutory decree entered by that court, enjoining the infringement by the appel-lants of a patent on a "bothe sealing device" granted to William Painter, of Bultimore, in 1892.

The case is being most elaborately ar

The case is being most elaborately argued and holly contested. The appallants are represented by Hon. Hector T. Fenton, Philadelphia, patent attorney, and John E. Semmes, of Baltimore, Md. while the appelles are represented by Mr. Robert H. Parkinson, well known patent atorney of Chicage, and Hon. John C. Rose, of Baltimore, Md. The judges gave very close attention to the arguments of counsel.

Looked Like a Bar:

Had a stranger walked into the courtroom, his first impression would have been that he had strayed into a very different bar, as there were exhibited on the bench of the court and tables in the court-room a hundred or more bottles, some empty and some filled with the familiar liquids so often seen therein.

This being a case of such importance, the court gave the entire day to the hearres of it and therefore no other cases.

Into Renovated Opera House.

Mr. E. Harvie Spence, Councilman and merchant, will on the first of the year move his place of business from the "wrong side of Broad Street" to Noz. 22-24 North Ninth Street.

It is a singular coincidence that Mr. Spence was engaged in business in the building now occupied by the Bijou Theatre, and that now he is to move into the building formerly known as the Virginia Opera House.

"This may mean," said Mr. Spence, "that in years to come there may be another theatre here, and then I will have to move my trunks and shoes somewhere cise."

The old Opera House building will be remodeled and a handsome front will be put in, so that the building will be not only an ornament to Ninth Street, but to the city.

"If I had known the ordinance fixing the Mayor's salary at $3,000 was in any possible danger of defeat," said Alderman Gilman, of Lee Ward, last night. "I would have certainly attended the meeting of the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night, although I was suffering greatly with one of my eyes."

The only other absence was Mr. Donahue, of Madlson Ward, and he stated that while he favored an increase in the Mayor's salary, he thought $3,000 was sufficient, and would have voted for the amendment offered by Mr. Satterfield, though if this had not been offered he would have supported the original proposition. saw him. RADFORD, VA., Nov. 16.—A notable wedding was celebrated here this evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Annibell Scott hecame the bride of Dr. Albert Johonnsen. Of Washington city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. W. Irwin, of the Presbyterian Church, at the bome of Mr. R. O. Scott, an uncle of the bride.

No cards had been issued, and the marrage was a gulet affair, only the Afternoon Idlers, of which Miss Scott is a member, and a few other intimate friends and relatives being present.

Miss Melita Wilson was mad of honor, Miss Gertrude Venable played the wedding march. The beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal Church was used, after which an elegant luncheon was served.

The bride is a sweet and cultured young lady. She was educated at the Mary Baldwin Seminary, and afterwards studied two years at Gunston Institute, Washington. Later she went abroad and traveled considerably on the continent, returning from a second trip abroad in Sentember.

Miss Scott is the fourth member of the Afternoon Idlers to be married. She has a wide circle of friends in Radford and will be greatly missed. She is a daughter of Mr. Charles Scott, a wealthy in the own right.
